JUST THE TONIC HAS HOSTED MOST OF THE MODERN GREATS IN COMEDY OVER THE YEARS. HERE'S WHAT A FEW WELL-KNOWN NAMES HAVE SAID ABOUT OUR CLUB AND IT'S FOUNDER...

JOHNNY VEGAS

"Lots of my favourite stories are from Just The Tonic gigs. Once I arrived really late and they had to close the venue, so we all went into the car park at the back instead and I ended up auctioning off everything from my bag – my toiletries and all that.

"Another time we had a bonfire where people actually burnt themselves. Oops! Then there was a night where I was singing in a wheelie bin, being passed around the tables like pass the parcel. When I'd stop, the table would win a round of drinks. I think it's a sign of a really good comedy club when you don't have to do your greatest hits, but can go and play about instead."

RICKY GERVAIS

"Darrell Martin is a cheeky @#*@. The first time I met him he invited me to play his club in Nottingham. The second time I met him I didn't recognize him from the first time I met him. I thought he was a homeless drunk who'd just started talking to me at the bar. The third time I met him he asked me to do a 1700 seater venue in the West End and let him keep the box office money so he could start a new club. I said yes of course. (Why wouldn't I? He's a man I'd met twice) The tickets sold out in a few hours and he immediately called me to say we could put the next night on sale too, "Yeah. Sure."

The first night, the car he'd said he'd sent for me didn't turn up. I just jumped in a black cab. Only £8. The two nights were a huge success and I think he made about £80,000. I hear the club is going well. He occasionally texts me to invite me to play there. I usually say I'm busy but the truth is I'm worried it will cost me too much money. The last text I got he asked me to do some press or write a little article about him. I said no. Yes he gave me my first gig. Yes he's got a nice friendly hobo face. And yes he's a funny guy and a great promoter. But enough is enough. Cheeky @#*@."

STEWART LEE

"This is the kind of man Darrell Martin is: My dad used to be obsessed by boiled sweets and he died recently and I picked up all this stuff that was his from his brothers. There were loads and loads of packets of sweets and I put them in the glove compartment of the car and thought "as I eat those I'll think of my dad".

"I gave Darrell a lift up to Nottingham from London. In the glove compartment of my mini were a load of boiled sweets. At one point I got out to get petrol. Then a few days later I noticed that all the packets of sweets had gone except for one. I asked Darrell about it and he said it wasn't anything to do with him. Then that guy he works with said that Darrell had stolen them all and they were all in his office and that he used to sit and laugh about how he'd got all these sweets off me.

ED BYRNE

"I have a special affinity for Just The Tonic. It's somewhere that I kind of grew up as a comedian, I suppose. I played it very early on in my career and I've always had a really good gig there. I get on very well with Darrell Martin, who runs the club, so it was one of the first places I picked when I was looking to do some warm up gigs for the DVD. The only time I had a bad gig there was one New Year. New Year gigs can be a whore. Then again I'd definitely had a few. That also tends to happen at Just The Tonic gigs."

JUST THE TONIC COMEDY CLUB IS ON AT MIDNIGHT EVERY NIGHT DURING THE FESTIVAL. DARRELL MARTIN WILL BE HOSTING MOST OF THEM. IF HE'S NOT IT'S BECAUSE HE COULDN'T BE BOTHERED OR SOMETHING BETTER TURNED UP!

Q&A WITH THE LEGEND THAT IS DOTTAMAN

On BBC Alba, a channel that speaks only Gaelic, a children's entertainer and a legend was born. For the last two years, Dottaman has been appearing as The Colour Ham's special guest and, for the first time, he's agreed to be interviewed.

What made you step away from the telly and onto the stage at Edinburgh Fringe?

Hooshty booshty dooga dooga, ma fa haulde maulde massive tits.

You regularly appear with The Colour Ham, how did this come about and how did you meet?

Ahh The Colour Ham, thra ma ha nanka, sha francha dooga Emmerdale wanks.

Can Colin really read minds in the show?

Ma shabooshdy shadoggu fa ma noah dooga Linda McCartney. Ball-gina.

You're always the height of fashion, where do you get your jumpers from?

Heeshty ma deeshty ba dooshty yer maw!

Apart from Gaelic, do you speak any other languages?

不, 我不会任何其他语言. No.

Apart from your good friends The Colour Ham, will you be taking in any other shows this year?

Mooby wooby sha wooby dooby am I fuck.

Last question, Dottaman, think carefully about this one, is the ball under the cup or in Kevin's hand?

Ahhhh Piff Puff Poof Kevin Mahon. De gong gong! Frahushna la la eggs. Cheerie!

STOP, IT'S HAM-MER TIME

Flashback to 2012 and The Colour Ham were preparing for their first ever run of Edinburgh Fringe shows. Tentatively appearing for 11 nights at The Caves, the comedy sketch trio tested the waters with their unique brand of magic, mind reading and surreal comedy. Now look at them.

No one really knows where The Colour Ham came from exactly, not even The Colour Ham themselves. Maintaining an air of mystery, even two years and dozens of sold-out shows later, the trio won't even reveal the story behind their namesake.

Introducing Gavin Oattes, Kevin McMahon and Colin Cloud – known collectively as The Colour Ham, the trio that moved from obscurity to a sell-out success story so quickly, it was as if by magic.

It's not your typical origin story. The trio is made up of a former primary school teacher (Gavin), a magician (Kevin) and a mind reader (Colin) – the former admitting that, actually, he "normally f**king hates magic".

"The Colour Ham grew out of three people who got together and discovered they had a shared sense of humour, a shared love of all things nonsense but not a shared love of magic," explains Gavin.

Not content with their own flourishing careers, The Colour Ham started as a sort of release for the trio.

When they're not busy Ham-ing it up, Gavin is the award-winning MD of motivational training organisation Tree of Knowledge, Kevin McMahon sits in the artistic director's chair at the Edinburgh International Magic Festival and Colin Cloud travels the world as a forensic mind reader.

"A lot of people don't realise that we all have very sensible jobs," Gavin laughs. "We're very serious about our careers and I think we're really good at keeping the two things separate."

He grins wickedly: "The Colour Ham is our chance to let go a bit."

The trio did the seemingly impossible and found the time to form The Colour Ham – which is, when you think about it, kind of a super group.

Maybe it's their successful careers, which mainly centre around performing, that make The Colour Ham's DIY ethic so successful. There's no manager, no agent and, in Colin's case, no hair stylist to be seen – they do everything themselves.

Down to earth and refreshingly normal (sort of), they're just three best friends who share a great onstage chemistry and believe wholeheartedly in what they're doing.

"Over the last few years it's all gone a bit mental," Gavin says. "The Colour Ham has turned into a rather beautiful beast that we're really happy with."

"This is the year when we're going to step it up and really go for it."

"Step it up" is one way to put it. This year has seen The Colour Ham spread their brand of hilarity and oddity further than ever before. They gained a monthly residency at The Stand in Glasgow, which has seen them sharing a stage with the likes of Billy Kirkwood, and were nominated for Best Scottish Sketch Act at the inaugural Scottish Comedy Awards.

Recently, and perhaps most excitingly, the trio have been commissioned for the third series of BBC Radio 4's Sketchorama – which is scheduled to air during this year's Fringe.

For those who haven't had the privilege of seeing the trio in action, their surreal show is notoriously difficult to describe. After all, how many shows can you name that impersonate Cilla Black and BBC Alba's Dottaman in the space of 60 minutes?

"It's not everyone's cup of tea but we're totally cool with that," Gavin admits. "No one's doing what we're doing, I think we've stumbled across something that is totally unique."

With The Colour Ham becoming known for their unbelievable show endings – the first year saw the trio harvest each others' organs and the second saw them transform into five-year-olds in the blink of an eye – so what have The Colour Ham got up their sleeves this year?

Gavin doesn't miss a beat: "You'll just have to come and see."

The Colour Ham are magic, mental and utterly superb. They're one of the many acts at the Fringe that just shouldn't work – but one of the few that really, really do. (Nicola Love)

IAN LAVENDER

YOU'RE NEVER TOO OLD

Forty six years after it was first broadcast, Ian Lavender is still probably best known to the public as Private Pike from Dad's Army. However, Lavender has left the 'stupid boy' behind and arrives in Edinburgh this year to perform in You're Never Too Old, a new one-act play by author Steve Wood.

It's a play featuring two people, one bench and lots of questions. Jared Wilson asked some to the man himself...

So what was it that appealed to you about Steve Wood's play?

As an actor you always have lots of people sending scripts through. Most of them come by email these days as it saves on paper. So in my old fashioned way even as I started reading it, I was already feeling slightly against it because I don't like reading on screen. However, the dialogue gripped me from the beginning. This one I never even got to printing out - I just read it straight off in one sitting. I spent an absolutely delightful hour totally enraptured by the words in front of me. It's not often that you read something and think straight away "I definitely want to do this," but in this case I can honestly say that I did. I phoned my agent straight after to tell him to count me in.

Do you empathise with the character of Tommy?

Yes, I think to some extent I do. I love the way his mind works and I didn't see the twist coming at all. Obviously I don't want to give what it is away to your readers, but up until that point I just thought it was a delightful hour to spend in the company of two older people. The play is about a man and a woman and a park bench. They're two very attractive people and you don't know why they've both ended up by themselves.

Were you excited when Ruth Madoc agreed to take the role as Ada?

Yes. We've worked together before and I'm sure it will be a happy reunion. We're both similar in the sense that we have to deal with people stereotyping us from starring in Great British sitcoms and thinking that we can both only do comedy. When you make a comedy you know fairly instantly if it's working or not as the audience are either silent or laughing. With this play it's going to be a lot harder to gauge a reaction. But I know from working with her in the past that when she tries, she can really deliver the goods. Some people will write her off as the funny Welsh character from Hi Di Hi, but she's a really splendid and experienced actress. When we spoke I also realised that she had a very similar reaction to me on first reading it through. When she'd finished she knew immediately that she wanted to do it.

You made your Edinburgh debut last year playing Brooksie in the stage adaptation of The Shawshank Redemption. How was that?

I had an absolute ball. I loved every minute of the four weeks we had up there and I knew immediately that if the chance came up I wanted to perform at the festival again. I came to this quite late in life and so it's really special to finally get the chance to perform here now I'm in my late sixties. I want them to pay me of course, but the truth is I'd probably do it for free.

Can you put your finger on what it is that makes the festival so special?

You can just lose yourself in the whole atmosphere. You don't go to festivals to earn money, you go for the experience. It makes me feel like I'm a teenager again. So I would have been happy coming up again for a lot of reasons, but to come back with a piece like You're Never Too Old is something I'm particularly pleased with.

What was your favourite show last year?

Probably Sean Lock. He's just extraordinary. Such an immensely talented and funny man. I could listen to him for hours.

GETTING INSIDE THE HEAD OF THE FORENSIC MIND READER

BEFORE HE GETS INSIDE YOURS

by Nicola Love

A few months before Edinburgh Fringe, I'm sipping coffee in the centre of Edinburgh and waiting nervously for Colin Cloud to appear. It's hard to pre-empt a man who's been likened to Derren Brown and Sherlock Holmes as many times as Cloud has.

When he arrives I quickly discover the comparisons, bold as they may be, are actually pretty accurate. (They'd be more accurate, perhaps, if Holmes wore skinny jeans and was decorated in tattoos).

Cloud is warm and affable but, as he sits opposite me, there's no deer stalker in sight. There is, however, a wicked glint in his eye – the same look, I note, Benedict Cumberbatch uses to make millions of female viewers swoon on BBC's Sherlock.

However, for Cloud, his interest in Sherlock Holmes pre-dates Cumberbatch and the BBC – instead it goes back to the books of Arthur Conan Doyle. An avid reader of the detective series since he was eight years old, what started as a fascination for Cloud has since turned into a rather unusual career path.

"The way [Holmes] made these grand deductions from seemingly insignificant details sparked my imagination," Cloud begins. "I wanted to turn Conan Doyle's fiction into a reality which eventually inspired me to develop my own set of skills."

Cloud's show, The Forensic Mind Reader, does just that. He reveals things about his audience that he just shouldn't know - like the name of your first love or your PIN number. Even that weird thing you did yesterday when you thought no one was looking.

Unlike Holmes, Cloud stresses that he only ever reads those who want to be read. "I love shifting the emotion of a room from laughter to astonishment in an instant," he smiles. "But I want to make sure people enjoy taking part."

Now that we've established the difference between Cloud and Holmes, I have to ask, what is it that sets him apart from Channel 4 favourite Derren Brown? "Apart from my ridiculous hair?" jokes Cloud. "Derren Brown is incredible and we both deal with the world of cerebral magic but the major difference is our performance style. We are completely different people."

While both Brown and Cloud rely on psychology for their 'readings', Cloud takes his background in criminal profiling one step further. "My scientific background [Cloud left school at 15 years old to pursue a degree in forensic investigation] means the things I do are linked to solving crimes and profiling people. I can work out if you've been naughty, what you've done and why you've done it."

His comedy club background also differs from Brown's. "I learned to perform by touring comedy clubs, so I approach my shows with a sharp sense of humour."

Ahead of his Fringe run, he's performed The Forensic Mind Reader in front of sold-out audiences in London, New York and Los Angeles.

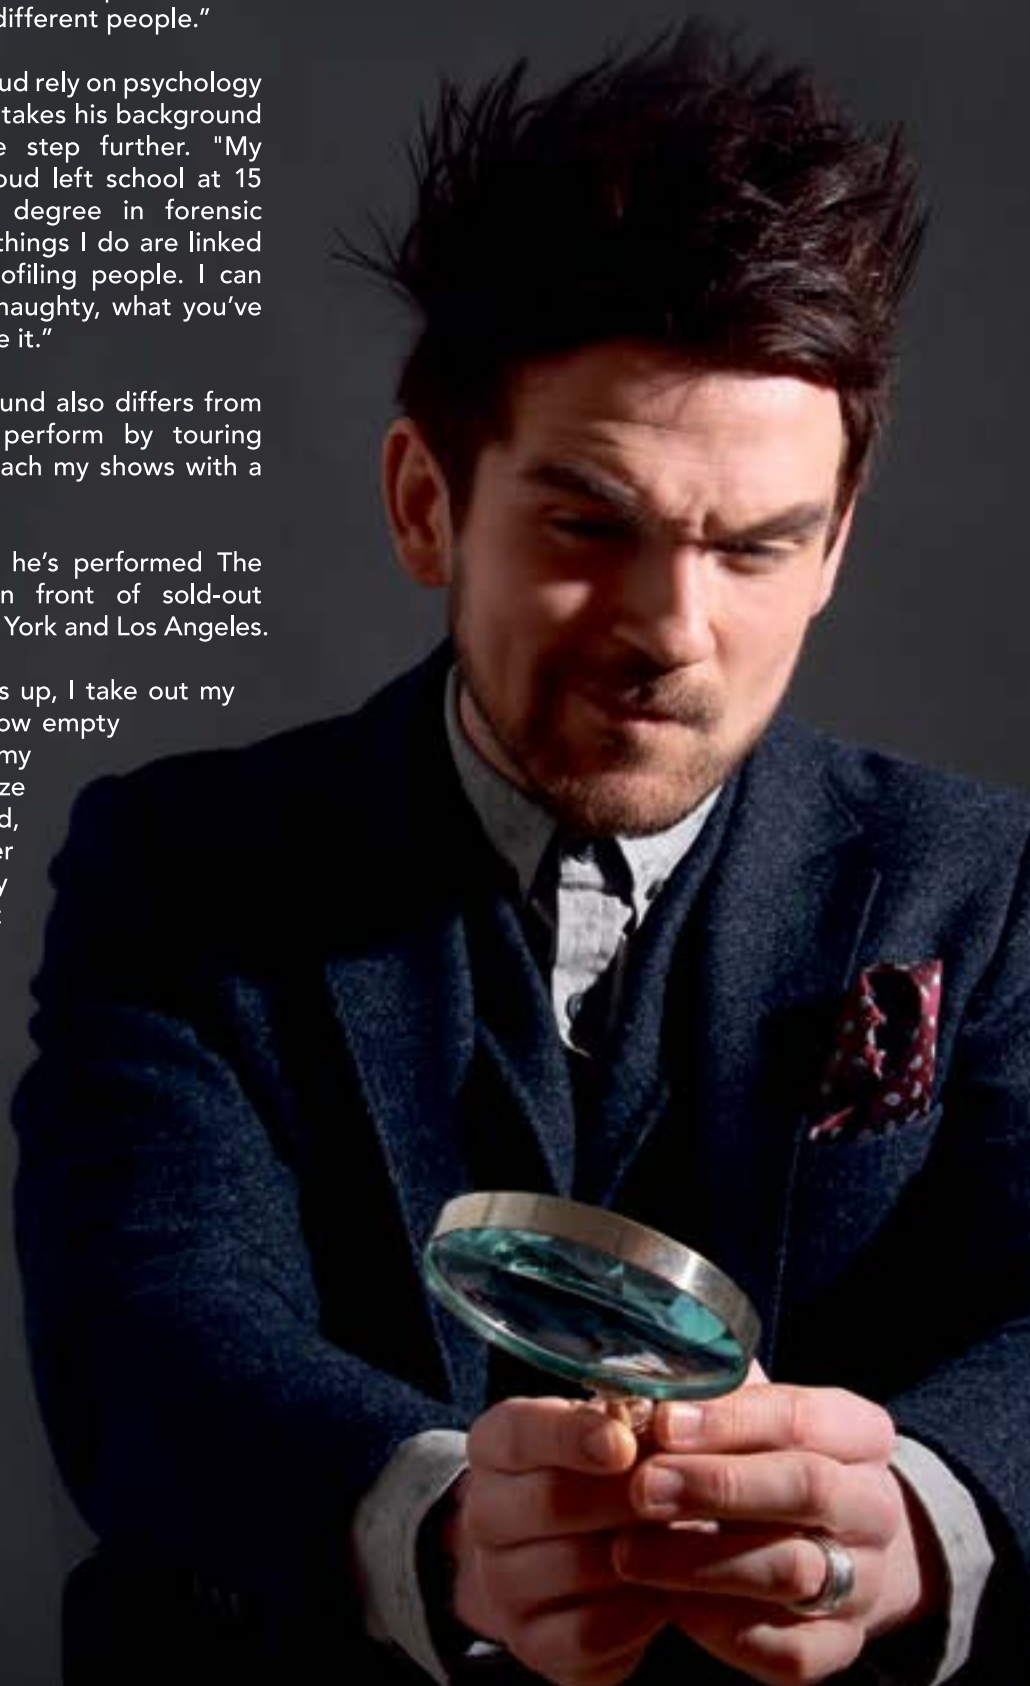

As our conversation wraps up, I take out my debit card to pay for a now empty cup of coffee. Before my hand can so much as graze the chip and pin keypad, Cloud utters a four-number sequence that is very familiar to me. He's spent the last half an hour telling me what he can do, but this is the first time I've seen it in action.

Now I have only one question left: how the hell did he do that? Cloud simply smiles, "You told me. You just didn't realise you were telling me." With that he pays for our coffees and disappears into the crowded street. Just like that, I've had my first encounter with a forensic mind reader.

Colin Cloud clearly possesses a gift that most of us don't. At the Fringe, he'll marry that unique talent with solid showmanship and quick wit. Just be prepared to change your PIN number afterwards.

RAINBOW STRIPES!

We're all about the family at Just The Tonic. So for those parents who want somewhere to keep your kids occupied and have a bit of fun as well, we've brought along Rainbow Stripes with us. It's a workshop group aimed at your little 'uns run by veteran kids performers Sue Scargill and Pete Lynn. Jared Wilson ran some questions by Sue to give you a taste of the Rainbow flavour...

So explain to us what Rainbow Stripes do...

We put on music sessions for the under-fives and their families. It's laid back, fun and easy going, acoustic guitar and bongos accompany the session. We usually run this from our base in Nottingham and through the week we average 15 sessions in schools, libraries and community centres. Our biggest rewards come from the positive reactions we get from children and their parents through music. It's just really beautiful to watch them interacting with what we do.

Tell us about some of the activities you do with the kids...

The set changes each week, but an average day might include us handing out an instrument for each child to play, having a big singalong, sending various objects up to the moon on a parachute, playing with floaty scarves, everyone sitting down for storytime and much more! The sessions can be as interactive as the audience wants, although I do sing loudly enough to carry everyone.

How long have you been doing this for?

We're now in our eleventh year. For the last 25 years I have worked with children and Pete has been a professional musician so we've got the perfect mix of experience between us. We started out in Sure Start centres and that's where our roots lie, but we've branched out since then.

What makes a good kids song? Can you tell us some of your particular favourites?

Our favourites are groovy, interactive basic songs you can have some fun with. Pete's version of the alphabet song (to the tune of Twinkle Twinkle Little Star) is the funkiest one you'll hear in town! We've also recorded children's songs over two albums. The first is Live and Unplugged, which is where our Edinburgh show got it's name. That's really a collection of some of our favourite traditional songs. Then after that we recorded Never Mind the Bobbins, which contains mostly our own compositions. Over the years we've sold thousands of CD's and downloads. I think its because we're not twee and irritating like most kids music. It can be fun for parents to listen to them in the car or at home as well.

What do you think to Just The Tonic in Nottingham? Do you go along to the club much?

I love it. I go along as much as I can and I've seen some cracking acts there. The quality of the booking is always good and you're always guaranteed a good night out.

So I hear you got this gig because you look after Just The Tonic promoter Darrell Martin's kids. What are they like? Be honest, are they proper little brats?

Darrell's kids have been attending our sessions for a while now. The kids are beautiful and a joy to work with. But between you and me it's Darrell who's the nightmare, always spitting out his dummy!

Rainbow Stripes are in The Community Project from 31st July - 10th August 10.05am & 11.10am £2.50-£6

PRICELESS BUT TOP HIGH

THE HIPSTER SHERLOCK HOLMES STV EXCLUSIVE

"How the bloody hell did you do that?" Simon Cowell

COLIN CLOUD, THE Forensic Mind Reader, has famously performed for professional superstar sceptics like Penn and Teller on ITV, wowed the notoriously hard-to-please Simon Cowell, left Jonathan Ross speechless on national TV (surely a first!) and convinced audiences world-wide that he possesses mystical skills.

'AMAZING' says the Herald, 'THE SHERLOCK HOLMES OF THE MIND' says the Daily Record.

From Caesars Palace® Las Vegas to Hollywood's Magic Castle, off Broadway to London's West End, Colin now brings his five-star rated show to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe within the intimate setting of the Caves. Finally you can get up close and personal for the price of a really big bag of crisps.

The show balances his incredible Holmes-esque detection skills with an array of quick-witted, comedic moments. He will peer into your soul, steal your thoughts and maybe steal your heart as well.

"Amazing, awesome, brilliant, wow!" Jonathan Ross

In a word: mind-blowing. OK that may be two – it's a roller-coaster ride not for the faint of heart, it's uplifting, it will challenge everything you thought you already knew and you'll feel the better for it.

Bridging the gap between fact and fiction, behold, as this real-life forensic scientist/mind reader locates the guilty person in the room, profiles a murderer, reveals the intimate details of your personal memories and solves a crime that the audience will commit. I guarantee the climax of the show will raise you to your feet.

Colin Cloud has the ability to deduce everything about you. Everything. And undoubtedly he will. You know you want to see him. What's more – he already knows it too.

"Colin Cloud takes the impossible, makes it possible, leaving his audience open-mouthed... and just a little nervous."
